

INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL FOR HUMAN RIGHTS - COLOMBIA / FICDEH OPEN CALL FOR ENTRIES 2024 RULES OF PARTICIPACIÓN

The eleventh edition of the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia / FICDEH will be held in August of 2023 with on-site screenings in the cities of Barranquilla, Medellín, Cali, Bogotá, Soacha, Cartagena, Manizales, Pereira, Villavicencio, Quibdó, Cúcuta and more than thirty municipalities in Colombia.

1. OUR GOALS

Since 2013, the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia / FICDEH offers a film and cultural program that contributes to the formation of audiences, the strengthening of the audiovisual and cultural industries, the creation of spaces for the dialogue around life, reconciliation, the promotion and defense of Human Rights, and the construction of ideas for peace.

2. WHO CAN PARTICIPATE?

Producers, directors and distributors from any country who own intellectual property rights and all other rights over the audiovisual work they are competing with.

2.1 OBLIGATIONS OF THE PARTICIPANTS

The participants declare that they own the rights to the audiovisual work with which they are participating (including each and every one of the images, sound and soundtrack), and that they have obtained in writing all the authorizations or permissions for it to participate in the festival. This implies that they also have all the rights and corresponding authorizations of third parties whose work or part of it has been incorporated into the audiovisual work, as well as third parties whose image and/or voice appear in the audiovisual work, especially if they are minors or persons under guardianship.

FICDEH will consider the person or legal representative of the entity that submits its film as the sole interlocutor to address issues related to the participation of the audiovisual work in the festival, assuming full responsibility towards the persons or companies involved in the production of the film.

The Festival will not be responsible for any claim derived from the non-compliance with the terms established in these regulations. Consequently, the participants release the Festival from any and all claims, demands, lawsuits and judicial measures taken against them by third parties, whatever the reason may be. Likewise, they undertake to guarantee, compensate and hold harmless the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia against all expenses and fees related to legal proceedings and direct or indirect damages, as well as an eventual judgment against the Festival, or payments resulting from an agreement signed with the plaintiff.

3. REGISTRATION DATES

Projects for the festival can be submitted from March 7th, 2024 until April 25th, 2024 at 12:00 p.m.

4. REQUIREMENTS

The registration for a film to the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia / FICDEH must be done through the FestHome or FilmFreeway platforms before the indicated deadline.

On each platform you will find instructions on how to register your film. In case of any problems with your registration, we recommend that you write directly to the platform's customer service.

4.1 CONDITIONS

Only films completed after June 1st, 2022 are eligible to participate in the Festival.

Audiovisual works in different languages than Spanish must have the subtitles in Spanish; otherwise, they will not be considered for selection.

Audiovisual works that do not have relevance about human rights will be automatically disqualified.

Films submitted to previous editions will not be accepted, even if it is a new version of the film.

NOTE: Please note that a successfully completed submission does not mean the automatic inclusion of the film in the Festival's program.

5. CATEGORIES IN COMPETITION

The films must address human rights in their narrative in an objective and constructive manner. We are looking for directors who creatively scale the denunciation to propositive narratives, echo their protagonists and their stories, and can be considered as a tool to raise awareness, promotion and memory for society.

8. JURY

The festival organization will appoint the jury, made up of at least three international and two national film professionals (committed to the struggle for human rights as activists or with their audiovisual works). No member of the jury may be involved in any way with the production or distribution of any film competing in any of the categories of the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia.

9. USE OF SELECTED WORKS AND PROMOTIONAL MATERIAL

All promotional material (texts, data and photos) sent by the participant to the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia during the registration period will be freely used in online and physical publications (Festival catalog, festival program, press releases and on the festival's website), in order to make the selected works known to the public. This material may be translated, corrected or edited before publication. Participants authorize the dissemination of up to three minutes of images of the audiovisual works entered, in any media. The Festival may make a video montage of several fragments of the films selected for the Festival and disseminate it in any format for promotional purposes related to the Festival, in Colombia and abroad.

The Festival will store the films, as well as any other digital or physical material received and may be consulted at its convenience. The Organization will not return any copy sent.

The full acceptance of these conditions grants the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia the exhibition rights. The selected audiovisual works may be used in film screenings outside the Festival, in events deemed appropriate by the Organization.

Under the terms of these regulations, the participants give the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia authorization to publish and use this material for the aforementioned purposes. The respective credits will always be given.

11. PROGRAMMING

The programming is at the sole discretion of the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia.

12. SHOWCASES OF THE INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL FOR HUMAN RIGHTS -COLOMBIA

Throughout the year, the Festival carries out traveling exhibitions of the films that were part of the official selection of each year, until the next edition takes place.

Any of the selected audiovisual works may be included in the traveling exhibition designed to disseminate the objectives of the Festival and give them global reach. These traveling exhibitions may be included in special audiovisual events or programs. Access to the exhibitions will be free of charge.

13. ORGANIZATION

The International Film Festival for Human Rights - Colombia is organized by the Impulsos Foundation.

It is conceived as a cultural and non-profit event. Some of the Festival's exhibition venues charge admission to the public, but this collection is not related to the Festival, which is and will remain non-profit and does not receive any profit from this concept. Therefore, the Organization will not pay any money to any participant for the participation of his or her audiovisual work in the Festival.

Registration in the International Film Festival for Human Rights -Colombia implies full acceptance of these rules by all participants, agents or representatives. Once an audiovisual work has been selected, it cannot be withdrawn from the program.

The Festival may add additional rules that it deems convenient for the best fulfillment of the event. The interpretation of these rules, norms and regulations, as well as other aspects not contemplated in them, will be the exclusive competence of the Festival Organization.
